HOUSTON (January 20, 2022) – A pregnant Vietnamese potbelly pig named Juno was rescued by the Houston SPCA last December and has been very busy lately preparing for the birth of her piglets. Animal lovers continue to stop by her livestream to see how the mother-to-be is doing, and if her little bundles of joy have arrived.

Viewers can watch Juno 12 hours a day on the Houston SPCA YouTube Channel: greeting staff members who come by her stall to say ‘Hi’ or getting a veterinary check-up; enjoying fresh fruit and feeding time as well as ‘nesting’ as she prepares for the big day.

Juno’s name has a Latin origin that means Goddess of Love, Marriage and Childbirth. She was rescued by the Houston SPCA on December 30, 2021, when her former owner was unable to provide the necessary care for the potbelly. Juno has created quite a buzz as the Barn Team and veterinary staff continue to keep a close watch on her. In recent days, Juno has shown several signs that she may be close to giving birth.

Stay tuned.....
